Interpreting the Results

The Neethling Brain Preference Profile (NBPP) identifies the thinking preferences of the individual. Gaining insight into the way we prefer to think, makes us more aware of and sensitive to the preferences of others.

Developing better relationships, making more dynamic contributions in the team and making sound and relevant decisions are but a few of the advantages of understanding your own thinking profile. Making more accurate job and career choices or determining the correct subject or study selections, could eventually lead to the individual enjoying a more productive and fulfilled personal and professional life.

Because the focus is on thinking preferences the end result is neither good nor bad or right or wrong. The Neethling Brain Preference Profile is a descriptive, objective analysis of the individual's thinking choices, with no profile being better or worse than another. Instead, the report gives a description of an individual's thought preferences, and makes recommendations based on those.

The Neethling Brain Preference Profile measures thinking preferences, and not the skills or abilities necessary to execute those preferences. It is therefore possible that an individual could have a very strong preference for order, planning and organization, but has never had the opportunity to develop the skills to plan and organize. The recommendation in this instance would be that since the desire is there, the skills to support that desire should be developed in order to be effective in a given career.

On the other hand, it is possible that a person could have excellent skills to be a banker, but has a very low preference (which could lead to a rejection) of the processes associated with the job. The individual would therefore not be able to sustain the passion and energy to stay happy and productive in the banking environment. Not only does the profile indicate the dominant or high preference areas but the average and low preference quadrants are also indicated and explained.

It is important to note that the total score for every profile is 300. The scores are categorized as follows:

95+ Very high preference
80-94 High preference
65-79 Average preference
50-64 Low preference
-50 Very low preference

Please note that an individual's profile should always be evaluated in categories and not according to exact scores.

Candidate specific information

Quadrant: L1 - 96

Very High Preference

Kenneth's brain profile shows that he is very comfortable with factual, logical, rational and critical thinking.

Kenneth prefers an environment governed by clear guidelines and expectations, working with factual, technical or scientific data. He is very likely to be precise and accurate in his approach, strongly focusing on the task at hand. Objective and factual, Kenneth is highly analytical and allows little scope for feelings or emotions. He has a strong preference for dealing with concrete information such as quantitative measurements and financial data, and could get frustrated if he does not have all the facts. Realism is very important to him, but he is likely to be critical of anything that does not comply with the high standards that he sets. Kenneth is performance driven and can sometimes be authoritarian, using external discipline to achieve the desired result.

Kenneth will be comfortable with analytical problem solving, data analysis, statistics, budgets and logical thinking processes.

Quadrant: L2 - 83

High Preference

Kenneth also has a high preference for processes such as attention to detail, organization and a procedural approach. He tends to be dedicated and disciplined, valuing tradition and routine. He prefers a structured, tidy and well-organized environment. Kenneth is comfortable seeing a task through to completion following a step-by-step procedure, ensuring that nothing is overlooked. He has a high regard for security and safekeeping, and is likely to find comfort in being able to plan for all eventualities.

Kenneth is comfortable following instructions, writing systematic reports and finding practical applications for knowledge gained. He will be comfortable with implementation, tactical planning and administrative tasks.

Quadrant: R1 - 63

Low Preference

It is unlikely that Kenneth will enjoy an unstructured situation without clear guidelines or expectations. He will most probably not be comfortable in a constantly changing environment that requires him to look for alternatives, experiment and be involved with a variety of things simultaneously.

Quadrant: R2 - 58

Low Preference

It is unlikely that Kenneth will enjoy constant interaction with others, as he prefers working on his own, or as part of a small team. He will most probably not be comfortable in an environment that requires him to be emotionally sensitive and show empathy and support on an ongoing basis.
